Claims 1-2

The documents JP 2002-201838 A, JP 4-38246 A, US 5157389 A and JP 2001-349110 A, which are cited in the international search report, do not disclose the feature that is set forth in claim 1, wherein the invention "comprises a first means for outputting a request signal to the aforementioned portable transmitter/receiver when the start switch of a vehicle is switched to ON, a second means for detecting the response signal output by the aforementioned portable transmitter/receiver, which is based on the aforementioned request signal, and a third means for issuing a warning in cases when the aforementioned response signal can not be detected by the aforementioned second means, regardless of the output of a request signal from the aforementioned first means." Furthermore, said feature is not obvious to a person skilled in the art.

Consequently, the invention that is set forth in claim 1 is novel and involves an inventive step.

The invention that is set forth in claim 2 cites the invention that is set forth in claim 1; therefore, it is novel and involves an inventive step for the same reason as the invention that is set forth in claim 1.

Claims 3-6

The documents that are cited in the international search report do not disclose the feature that is set forth in claim 3, wherein the invention "comprises a first means for outputting a request signal to a portable transmitter/receiver at regular periods, a second means for detecting the response signal output by the aforementioned portable transmitter/receiver, which is based on the aforementioned request signal, and a third means for issuing a warning at the stage when the aforementioned response signal can no longer be detected by the aforementioned second means." Furthermore, said feature is not obvious to a person skilled in the art.
